1. The poem is written for a person who is a subject of love to the narrator.
2. The poet wants to offer spreading cloths to her feet but being poor he only thinks about her faith.
3. In my opinion "golden and silver light" means the magnificent light in the eyes of the poet. It looks like a fairy tale. If to talk about the phrase "the half-light", it means a little faith hope in his heart because it is really hard for the narrator to be with her.
4. I guess it means sorrow to himself. This situation is unpleasant.

Once upon a time I woke up a usual but everything started going wrong from the beginning. I lost my toothpaste and I had to go to the shop in early morning with a look of homeless because I wasn't prepared to go out. Then when I did my morning routine I wanted to have breakfast, but in some wonderful way my fridge was empty. I perfectly remembered that I had bought food the day before. At that moment I started thinking that I become insane. Hungry and frightened I opened my wardrobe and was taken aback. There wasn't any of my clothes! Everything was strange, not mine. I decided to go out and to breathe clean air. It was the worst decision of my life! I saw for about five my close friends in the street. All of them didn't even say hi to me. They behaved like we had never met each other. The last friend looked really suspicious. He turned around and started running from me. ~~We ran~~ I ~~ran~~ ran after him. We came into a place where all my friends was. It was a joke! They congratulated me with my birthday and created a super party. They knew I ~~love~~ love pranks. This was the most interesting in my life. The day ended right!
