Task 9

"A Misadventure Turned Adventure"

About five days ago me and my mom decided to relax. We were determined to visit Volcanoes National Park, which is located 50 miles away from our town.

We took off... or... no, we didn't take off. When my mom tried to turn on our car, guess what happened - it broke down in the best moment. We were shocked, but anyway bought bus tickets and headed towards our destination.

The weather outside was awful and we both were really sick because of the stress. It felt like we would sit in this bus till the cows come home. Little did we know, that after two hours^{es} some thing would happen again. We thought there's nothing can be worse... we were very wrong. This bus also broke down and we had to walk to Volcanoes Park through the heavy rain on a dirty path.

When we finally arrived, there were generous people who gave us warm cloth and medicine. After a while, our phones were out of storage, because of the amount of pictures we took, ~~and~~ we ordered taxi and drove home.

Even though the way to the Park was unbelievably exhausting, we had the time of our lives there.
