Task 7

Some people don't like big cities. Let's try to understand why it may happen.

The first reason is constant stress. Many visitors of busy cities feel nervous because of large amounts of strangers, quickly passing by. Secondly, newcomers can hardly achieve the place they need to go to, as long streets are unknown to them. Also, going somewhere by car usually takes much time, traffic jams often happen. The air in towns is cleaner than in cities.

Task 8

Nowadays social networks play an important role in lives of all people, especially teenagers. Some adults think that too many teens spend their free time surfing the Internet.

A new research showed that ^{for} 73% of youngsters using social networks is a part of daily routine while 37% of teens do it to send messages to friends. Communicating with friends ~~for~~ in such a way for long periods of time is ~~probably~~ bad for teenagers. 22% of students log on to Facebook over 10 times per day and this fact makes scientists ~~far~~ less optimistic. ~~According to the research~~, 25% of Facebook users are under 10 years old. This information means that more and more children spend their free time surfing the Internet, which is certainly ungood for them.

In conclusion, the main reason of this tendency is that networks are found to be useful by students, but teenagers should limit the time of using them.
