Task 7

A friend of mine once said "I hate living in a big city". To explain her point of view, she first told that there are too many people, especially in the morning, when everybody heads for work. Then she told me that she is not satisfied with the quality of the air, as it is really polluted. The last point was the abundance of the stress due to the rapid rhythm of life in the city.

Task 8

The pie chart given shows daily activities for teenagers. As we can see, the biggest figure in diagram is seventy-three. It describes the percentage of teens using social networks. The possible reason behind this figure is that the adolescents are curious about the lives of their favorite celebrities and friends, who also have social network accounts. In addition, it is estimated that the average teen has 201 friends on one of the platform called Facebook. Moreover, 23 percent of teenagers log on to Facebook more than ten times per day. From my perspective, it is caused by the lack of outdoor activities. One more unexpected figure in the diagram is 25 percent of Facebook users, who are under the age of ten. In my opinion, it may be caused by the lack of supervision of the parents and their indifference towards their "social networking life".

To conclude, I analyzed and described the statistics.
