Task 9.

June twentythird: "Lorelei Gilmore, we ask you to leave the office due to the fact that you are fired." This horrible phrase kept ringing in my head all day long. Adding to this news, I also spilled hot coffee all over myself, while I was driving into the parking lot of my kids school. But the look on her face, I knew something was up. "I've gotten an 'F' today," she exclaimed. "Honey, that's totally fine." I comforted her, "besides, grades don't define who you are." The drive home was silent; everyone was in their own thoughts.

Some time later, we heard a sudden thud against our car. We scurried out of the car as soon as possible. Our gaze instantly shifted to the huge tear in the tire and jantler marks on the door. I screeched, "This day just can't get any worse, can it?" We compromised and decided to go for a walk to clear our heads. We had an amazing time together. We watched the birds chirp, frogs croak, and bugs buzz. As we were walking back, we saw red lights and heard beeping sounds. "Oh, that must be help," my daughter said, ~~little~~ Little did we know it was a tow truck. Here we go again."
