It used to be a motor state due to the Detroit. In the 1960s Michigan's capital was its peak. Cadillac, Plymouth, Ford, Dodge, etc. Almost every American car manufacturer built their plant ~~power plant~~ factories here in Michigan, Detroit. However, its glory days are far behind. Now, it's almost a forgotten bankrupted city in America. Though, Detroit is starting to recover from that crisis this.

4. Louisiana

The Southern state. Though, it is not a red-neck magnet. Louisiana used to be French biggest colony on the territories of nowadays US. Huge influence of the French could be seen even today since their language is still spoken there, especially in New Orleans. Louisiana is the birthplace of Louisiana Jazz, a unique mix of American Jazz and distinct French-influenced Louisiana dialect.

5. Montana

~~Thought to be~~ ~~on the~~ most picturesque state in America.

One of the most picturesque state in America. Yellowstone Park partially spreads its territory. Yellowstone TV-series was shot here and, actually, new seasons are coming out. Many Indian tribes have reservation in Montana. The biggest and most-populated city is Bozeman.

Task 9 A Misadventure Turned Adventure

Young adolescence, let's call him ² Patrick. He initially was off to the UK, to be more accurate, he wished to visit Scotland. However, when he arrived to his home town's one and only airport in Barcelona, Spain, he learnt that lots of flights were cancelled due to huge amount of volcanic ash over the UK. He was devastated at first since it should've been his vacation...

Then suddenly, sitting in the waiting area in the airport, he felt someone's ~~hand~~ ^{hand} on his shoulder. The stranger said: "I guess, we're all in the boat now." Patrick was quite surprised at first but then he recognised his old friend from the Netherlands who happened to encounter exactly the same situation. They went to a local coffee shop and actually decided to drive to the UK since they wouldn't get there via plane.

After they left the airport, they rented ~~at~~ a car in the city in a company which operates in the UK too. As soon as they crossed the border with France, they just couldn't not stop every hour then. Since they took the route which went through Cognac, Bordeaux, ~~Cham~~ Champagne. After a few days of their journey, they agreed that it was certainly better than climbing 'Scottish Alps'.
