Task 7

The first thing that comes to my mind is the problem of overpopulation. Big cities usually consist of thousands of citizens, ~~all living in the same territory~~. Because of that, big cities end up being too crowded and too noisy. Villages and small cities, on the other hand, do not have such problems. Country life is mostly quiet and peaceful, ~~state not so many of us wish to live there~~, due to a significantly smaller number of inhabitants. Perhaps such lifestyle would suit my friend more. ~~On the other hand~~ Big cities also have terrible eco-system. That could ~~be~~ be a reason as well.

Task 8

Hello everyone

Today, I want to discuss the statistics of teenager's daily social network activities that are presented in a form of a pie chart.

The given pie chart shows percentages of different teen activities. For example, it's mentioned that 73% of teenagers are using social networks. It is a noticeably large number, as it proposes that only 17% of teenagers do not use social media.

It is quite alarming that 25% of Facebook users are of 10 years and younger. I'd expect this percentage to be much smaller, since applications such as Facebook were created for people over the age of 13.

I would highly recommend limiting the use of social networks for underaged people. Nowadays, media tends to affect children quite negatively, often spreading misleading information or showing disturbing content that could possibly traumatise a child.

Other statistics seem to be stable and even positive. Most of them focus on remarkably good friendship statistics, which is very satisfying to see.
