Task 1.

1. Rohan was the central character in the story and he was known for his laziness.
2. Rohan's habit was to spend a lot of time doing nothing.
3. He was curious about the arrival of Mr. Gupta.
4. Mr. Gupta was found under the large branch of tree.
5. He used a glass to symbolize the importance of time.
6. Some other lessons learnt by the villagers under the wisdom of Mr. Gupta were that family was the best thing in life and that you could achieve all your goals by working hard.
7. The village was surprised of Rohan's transformed life.
8. I think the story emphasized that time is a limited resource and you should make the most of your life.
9. At ~~this~~ first, he thought that managing time was about prioritising tasks and dealing with them, but then he realised that it was about relationships and he began spending more time with his family.
10. I think that the ultimate lesson of the story was to help people understand that time is a precious gift and we don't need to waste it.

Task 7.

A friend of mine once said to me 'I hate living in a big city'. Then she gave me some strong reasons.

Firstly, every big city has dirty areas. Also, air is polluted because of cars, factories.

Secondly, there isn't much space for strolling. Besides, there are crowds of people and, as the result, hustle and bustle.

Summarising, living in big cities has a lot of benefits and drawbacks. Your attitude to it depends on your lifestyle and personality.

Task 8.

We live in the world of social networks. The main users of them are teens. The survey was done to see the stats.

The majority of teens, about 73%, are on social networks. This number has grown since the previous survey. Only 37% of users send messages to friends every day. Perhaps, the reason is that teens prefer face to face contact.

Talking about social networks, Twitter ^{isn't} as popular as it was, only 8% of American teens use it. Facebook's more used by different people. About 22% of teens log on to it over 10 times per day. Children are competent too. There are 25% of Facebook users under 10. They are more computer literate than their parents were. Almost every user under 18 has about 201 friends.

In conclusion, using social networks plays ^a big role in our life. Besides, it helps to be up-to-date.
