Task 1.

1. The central character in the story was a boy called Rohan. He was known for his laziness and his lack of ambition.
2. The habit of the boy Rohan that hindered his progress was wasting time and procrastinating on important tasks.
3. Upon hearing the arrival of Mr. Gupta in the village, Rohan's curiosity peeked.
4. Mr. Gupta was found sitting under a large tree when Rohan approached him for guidance.
5. Mr. Gupta used an hourglass to symbolize the importance of time to Rohan. He told Rohan to imagine that every single grain of sand in the hourglass was a precious moment in life. Every single grain of sand that falls is a wasted opportunity in life.
6. Some of the lessons learned by the villagers under the wisdom of Mr. Gupta were that time is a precious gift. It waits for no one, and every second that passes is a second you can't retrieve.
7. The village thrived really well under the influence of Mr. Gupta and Rohan's transformed life. The village honoured Rohan for his remarkable achievements and marveled the change in Rohan's life.
8. The story emphasized the fact that time is limited, and when you make use of time, days will turn into weeks and weeks will turn into months. This way, time is powerful and important for shaping destinies.
9. Over the years, Rohan's understanding of time changed, and he realized that the true power of time was nurturing relationships. Therefore, he started spending more quality time with his family and loved ones.
10. The ultimate lesson that the story of Rohan and Mr. Gupta conveyed to everyone was that time is a precious gift. It's a limited resource, so we have to use it and cherish every moment in life.

Task 7.

Some reasons that a person could give for hating life in the city are the traffic, the loud bustling noises, the polluted air, or even the lack of trees and plants. Sometimes, when you're in a hurry to go to work, or when you're late, the constant traffic in the city will make things worse. At night, people living in the city might not be able to sleep well. In addition, the air in cities is usually heavily polluted by all the factories and the cars, so it's not a very clean environment to live in.

Task 8.

Nowadays, social networks are widely popular among teenagers. Most teenagers use social networks constantly throughout their day.

According to the Teen Social Networking Stats, about 73% of teenagers use social networks, and 37% text their friends daily. As for what kind of social networks teenagers use, the statistics have shown that only 8% of teens use Twitter while 22% use Facebook more than ten times a day. The average teen has about 200 Facebook friends. Also, 25% of Facebook users are under the age of ten.

My hypothesis is that teenagers use social networks too much. Possible reasons for these changes include lack of confidence, lack of friends in real life, and addiction to Social networks.

In conclusion, most teenagers use social networks nowadays. In my opinion, it would be better if teenagers find other activities and interests to indulge in.
