Task 1)

Task 2) Yesterday I've decided to take a stroll up the hill. On the way up
~~I saw~~ I saw something move in the bushes, which ~~happened~~ ^{happened} to be a fox.

At first I was settled of, unsure of what's in the bushes, but as soon as the fox appeared I smiled.

After looking at it for a minute, I took a picture with it and continued on my stroll up the hill.

To make a summary of my impression of the stroll I would say that the stroll was fun and refreshing. I'm also happy that I've seen a fox. It's an interesting animal for me and I hope to see it again.

Task 3) 1. False. The term greenwashing has not appeared recently because it became popular in 1980s when people first began to the threat to world's environment.

2. True. Greenwashing is an instrument of marketing for some companies. Especially for ones that make fake claims to attract more customers or earn more.

3. False. The process of recycling waste is not widely used in fashion business because of its business model of 'fast fashion' that leads to massive consumerism.
