but Alexander Fleming did.

4. Ada Lovelace ^{wrote} ~~made~~ a first computer programme, but she never built a full computer

5. It was not while ^{develop} ~~discovering~~ tuberculosis's vaccine when he discovered penicillin.

Task 4

2. It was then when Clara understood the programme was real. Although she had some fears towards it at the back of her mind, she wrote an essay, showing her writing talents and motivations.

Clara explained, that if she got the letter last year, she would have refused due to ~~her~~ lack of confidence. Her father said he he had never hesitated sooner or later the world'll see her abilities.

4. Clara did know that her parents are well-off but was still confused why ^{could} ~~can't~~ she have a chance to shine. At home she sent an essay in one go. Undoubtedly, she ~~acted~~ ^{was} hectic. She hadn't even thought how would it affect her reputation. The positive reply from the organisers came in 3 days. Clara was accepted. The gossips soon reached her school...

6. Everyone there, even the closest friends of hers, ~~was~~ kept telling one phrase over and over again: "You must have refused!" Obviously, Clara did not. One day she stated: "I will prove you all wrong because this opportunity is not something I take for granted - I work so hard!" The crowd disliked how straightforward she was and started yelling. "I will go and the experience will be rewarding!" - exclaimed Clara and left the building.
