 2. Stephen Hawking did not carry out experiments on radioactive elements; Marie Curie did it.
 3. Louis Pasteur did not discover penicillin; Alexander Fleming did it.
 4. Ada Lovelace did not create a fully functioning electronic computer. It would happen years later.
 5. Alexander Fleming discovered penicillin while searching for how to lower ~~death rates~~ ^{death rates} during World War 1.

Task 4. Paragraph 2: At first, Clara wanted to turn a blind eye on this ~~unexpected~~ offer. After all, she would have ^{other} ~~more~~ opportunities to visit foreign countries in the future. Well, at least she thinks that ~~she would visit them~~ ^{this would happen} sooner or later. Despite that, some ~~kind of~~ a strange thought at the back of her mind made her think that this programme might be her only chance. So now she wanted to learn more.

~~Paragraph 4:~~

Paragraph 4: That classmate was dead wrong, ^{because now} Clara wants to prove ^{everyone} that she is ~~worthy~~ more worthy than every body else is. "I really do want to be the best", - Clara ~~so~~ whispered to herself. "I had not done enough to be successful", - Clara was on the verge of madness, she became really hectic and wanted to do every thing in one go. She ~~had become~~ ^{became} aggressive towards everyone.

Paragraph 5: ~~Now~~ Clara thinks to herself: "Was it really ~~much~~ worth it? I must have been nicer to my relatives. Now they would probably never talk to me again. I always took them for granted but now I really regret everything!" But Clara found some strength to apologize to everyone and it was more straight-forward than she thought. It felt rewarding. Now this programme will be more relaxed.
