Paragraph 2

Clara was confused but comprehended that she would need to make a decision sooner or later. Her uncertainty grew, but so did her self-confidence. At the back of her mind she was already imagining how she would become a professional of international level with the help of the programme. Plus, if she had been added in the first place, she could consider herself a very ambitious student and smart student.

Paragraph 4

She had sent a message confirming her interest in the programme just an hour before overhearing the discussion. Suddenly she realised she hadn't needed it at all. She already had a lot of privileges, and her parents were quite wealthy. She had taken someone's treasured only chance and had done it in one go! This realisation sent her on the verge of tears.

Paragraph 4 5 6

She must have rejected the offer for the sake of her classmates! She understood she had been taken her opportunities for granted while the others couldn't get ~~it~~ it all so easily. Finally, she made a straightforward solution and dismissed her message of confinement. This was rated as a very noble action ~~in~~ at her school. Clara understood that another student would have got a better future now, and, ~~surprised~~ surprisingly, nothing had ever felt so rewarding.
