Task 4.

Paragraph 2.

Clara felt very conflicted on what to do. She could turn a blind eye and leave the online group since she already had built a good portfolio for the future, but on the other hand at the back of her mind she knew the opportunity could benefit her sooner or later. Clara decided to wait for more details to make her decision.

Paragraph 4.

Clara was on the verge of tears thinking about the fact that her classmates doubted that she would participate in the programme. It really hurt her ego so she said to herself "I'll do it!" and accepted the offer in one go, despite knowing that it's a hectic thing to do since she took an opportunity from ~~anybody~~^{everybody} else in her school.

Paragraph 6.

That was the moment Clara ^{realised} that she used to take everything for granted and that she must change. So she decided to go straightforward and ^{she} cancelled her confirmation to the offer. In the future, she will get into her dream university even without a programme. She gave a chance to somebody else to let them make a future for themselves. That was the most rewarding thing for Clara.
