"Breakfast are now being served". This is the advertisement which you usually see at cafés.

Advertisement like that might refer to people who dislike to eat home or simply bad at cooking. Sometimes customers are workers. They often go at small cafés near their workplace because of need to eat something fast until their lunch break is over. If café serve breakfasts until 12AM, they can get more clients on weekends, considering the time most people wake up.

So people might take into consideration this advertisement, looking at the location, time and their taste.
