Task 4.

Paragraph 2.

At first Clara decided to turn a blind eye on the offer. But the welcome message kept unwillingly popping at the back of her mind. She ~~could~~ not simply brush it off. That said, she decided to learn more about the programme. Clara had forty-eight hours to reply, so it did not matter if she ~~is~~ will make a decision sooner or later.

Paragraph 4.

Once she heard that, she has made up her mind. Clara was already on the verge of accepting the offer, but now she wanted to prove her classmate wrong. It ~~is~~ has always been hard for her to do something so spontaneously, just in one go. But now Clara wanted to prove her cost. And she did. With a hectic move she grabbed her phone and accepted the offer.

Paragraph 6.

She realized that she had always taken her friendly relationships with her classmates for granted. Clara concluded that she must have been way too straightforward with her decision. Now she was unsure if the programme is going to be as rewarding as promised. By the next week, she had declined the offer. Clara hoped that everything will be the same as before, however that never happened.
