2) If he had known what was in that email, ~~maybe he would~~ maybe he would never have opened it. That email made him face his worst fear of taking risks. Oliver hadn't done that in a ~~many~~ long time. Doing only what is safe and predictable was in his element. However, what he read in the email was so promising that ~~it~~ once in a blue moon Oliver started to think about accepting a challenge.

4) Oliver ~~wasn't~~ knew that the proposal was a huge risk. However, if everything went well, he ~~could~~ would become extremely rich. But the other side of the coin was awful. He could lose his job and not be able to find a good one somewhere else. In Oliver's worst ~~scenario~~ he has been making ends meet since his wrong decision and all his friend ~~would~~ ^{think} thinks that he is pathetic.

6) Oliver also realised that if he hadn't been avoiding risks all the time he could have found even better opportunity. Despite this, he still hesitated. He believed that all the people are trying to take advantage of him, and he thought this case might not be different. But Oliver overcame his fears and decided to follow the flow, ~~which~~ ~~what~~ Later it appeared to be the right decision.
