Task 4.

Paragraph 2.

Oliver got an offer from a new production label. He couldn't realize they'd offered him to become a solo singer. He thought: " If I'd known about such an opportunity, ~~I'd give up~~ I would've left my job as soon as possible." Once in a blue moon he could only desire to be a back-up singer, but now he was fed up with being in group's element. The final straw was his salary being cut down.

Paragraph 4.

~~He wasn't pathetic, but has~~ Was he never imagined leaving a stable position for something like this. On the one hand, he was afraid to be deemed pathetic by his friends. On the other, he was hardly able to make the ends meet. By and large, he was in two minds. Suddenly he was struck by a thought: "I've been following the rules my whole life! What if it's a sign to take a risk and give it a try?"

Paragraph 6.

Oliver perceives like these considerable changes in his life had entailed only positive implications. Undoubtedly, he was ~~completely~~ completely satisfied with his new job, even though it wasn't ~~the~~ that posh. Now he felt reluctant about his future. Once after his shift Oliver thought: "I could do this earlier! I could become happy long time ago! ~~But~~ I'm constantly following the rules! Why? I should've taken advantage of my <sup>talent</sup> ~~abilities~~ earlier!"
