“Breakfasts are being served.”
The following advertisement could be seen on billboards and television, as it seems to be targetted towards an audience of people who can't cook, ~~who~~ whether whether they don't have the time^{to} or simply lack experience, like salarymen, single parents or teenagers. The reason said audience might take this advertisement into consideration is because a quick and decent breakfast made entirely for you might sound a lot easier than doing it yourself. The food could also just be very appetizing which is why it might be bought.
