Paragraph 2

Oliver had always felt in his element when working quietly, and opportunities like this came once in a blue moon. He realised that he had never imagined leaving his safe routine behind. If he had ignored the email, he would have remained stuck in the same predictable life. Yet the pressure at work had been building for months, and this unexpected offer became the final straw.

Paragraph 4

For weeks, Oliver has been trying to decide what to do, while struggling to make ends meet in his modest job. Rarely had he felt so uncertain about his future. By ~~that~~ large, his life had been stable, yet

The thought of never taking a chance now seemed almost pathetic. The offer continued to linger in his mind, growing harder to ignore each day.

Paragraph 6

Looking back, Oliver knew he could have stayed in his old position, but he would have regretted it forever. Still, he was reluctant to trust the overly posh new ~~by~~ team completely. One manager was always pushing him too hard, clearly trying to take advantage of his inexperience. Despite the irritation, Oliver understood that change was necessary if he wanted a different future.

Task 5.

1. busybody - A person who interferes in other people's matters, often asking questions and spreading ^{unwanted} ~~unwanted~~ attention.
2. to be poised to do something - To be ready or prepared to act, especially when smth important is about to happen.
3. to agree to disagree - to accept that people have different opinions and stop arguing without reaching full agreement.
4. sluggish - slow and lacking energy or speed, often causing delays or weak performance in actions or progress.
5. to pan out - to develop or turn up in a ^{particular} ~~particular~~ way, especially successfully or as originally planned.
