Task 4.

Paragraph 2.

The letter was written by a research team, which was aimed at exploring <sup>space</sup> exploring. Their work was an element of the final straw of a governmental program. They offered Oliver an interesting job with competitive salary. If he had accepted this offer he would have taken part in Mars colonisation and would have been at home once in a blue moon. Oliver had never thought about (space) universe before he received this email.

Paragraph 4.

Oliver was pathetic during the whole night. "I have been working on my own IT-project for 2 years and now I need to stop my research, ~~and~~ join this unknown team by and large. It's insane! - thought Oliver. - On the other hand, I'm making ends meet and I wish I had higher salary". Only when he realised how bad his financial situation was, did he consider this job to be a good solution.

Paragraph 6.

"Oliver, you're always refusing to ~~go~~ try something new!" - he recalled his mother's words. Oliver understood that could take an advantage of this offer and went out of his comfort zone. "How could I be so stubborn, push and indecisive!" - he complained. Eventually he made up his mind and decided to be a reluctant and colonise space. It was a good lesson for Oliver!
