Paragraph 2:

Teaching had never made Oliver feel as he's in his element. Due to low wages he could afford a vacation once in a blue moon. So the offer in the letter had stirred something in him. They were looking for a journalist for a travelling TV show. It was the final straw that made him realise something. If he hadn't been a teacher, Oliver would have dedicated his life to broadcasting.

Paragraph 4:

Oliver had stayed up late reflecting on his life. He has been struggling to make ends meet. Never had he ever imagined that he would have to borrow his friends' money to pay the bills. This made him feel pathetic. But the offer brought a gleam of hope to him ~~making Oliver believe that he has something great ahead of him~~. He decided to give it a shot. By David Lodge

Paragraph 6:

After getting the job Oliver has understood something. First of all his colleagues are very supportive and helpful. Secondly, some of them are always being late and take advantage of the boss not noticing their absence. Overall Oliver only regrets that he couldn't apply for this position earlier, because it brings him joy and passion every single day.

He couldn't be happier at this moment.
