Paragraph 2.

The email included an invitation on a special meeting. It was a letter from the ~~organization~~ company Oliver had never heard of before. It asked him to work on them and be in their element. The email implied Oliver to make a final ^{straw} in his career. "If I had had such an opportunity when I was a youth, I would have desperately taken it. Such high salary was seen once in a blue moon!" - he thought.

Paragraph 4.

Oliver almost felt pathetic as he couldn't compose himself. All kinds of thoughts were rushing through his mind: "What if this offer by any large is just a scam? I have been working on the ^{same} project at work for years...

Only if I could give up on everything!"

Apparently, he managed to fall asleep and in the morning he finally decided to make ends meet.

Paragraph 6.

As he was looking at all the push furniture around him Oliver kept doubting himself. "I could've stayed at home and kept living my miserable life..." - he thought to himself. People around him seemed for some reason seemed more mature than he was. "I am getting annoyed by their looks and faceless expressions," he gasped, but as during their reluctant conversation Oliver decided to take advantage of the situation and show off his skills. As a result, he got a job in a fancy company.
