No sooner had Oliver gone to bed, that all his thoughts were dedicated to the offer. He wanted to make his dream come true but understood the risk of losing everything. The thought of barely making ends meet by and large didn't satisfy him, ~~was a nightmare for him~~. Once his pathetic friend told him: "I can't understand your problem. If you've been thinking of it a lot, give it a go".

Paragraph 6:

Oliver feared the ~~manager~~ manager would be reluctant to listen to him and would say: "If only I could leave now, you're getting on my nerves". But she turned out to be friendly, and Oliver realised she'd not insult or take advantage of him. She took a contact card out of her pouch. Having glanced at the ~~card~~ ^{card}, Oliver nearly fell off his chair. It was The director was his father.
