Paragraph 2.

She wasn't sure whether she would like to join this programme or not so she asked her mum to help with her decision. But she turned a blind eye on Clara and refused to talk about it. Clara was disappointed but at the back of her mind she understood that it was only her decision. She still had some time to decide but sooner or later the deadline was to come.

Paragraph 4.

Clara ~~thought~~^{believed} that it would be a great opportunity to prove them wrong.

She had already done it so she didn't hesitate. Later that day she came back home with a feeling that she is on the verge of something magnificent and unusual. She did think that it would be a great experience.

Clara was very hectic so she decided to confirm the request in one go.

Paragraph 6.

She took for granted that she must had been wrong about all of it.

It was not that rewarding and exciting experience at all. She thought she would show her skills and everybody would admire her. But it was straightforward bullying and unrecognition in society. However she didn't give up and accepted the offer so by the end of this month she will have come back from the exchange programme.
